
A man takes his St. Bernard to the vet to check a bruised tail. The vet says, "Let me pick him up and examine him."

The vet looks at the dog's tail, checks his teeth, paws, and ears, then says, "Well, I'm going to have to put him down."

"What?" says the owner,
"Because he has a bruised tail?"

"No," says the vet, "because he's very heavy."

A frugal millionaire on his deathbed has his family gathered around. He says, “Is my wife here?”

“Yes, I’m here, dear.”

“Are my sons here?” he asks.

“Yes, we’re here, Papa.”

“My daughter, is she here?”

“Yes, I’m here, Papa.”

“Is everyone here?” he asks.

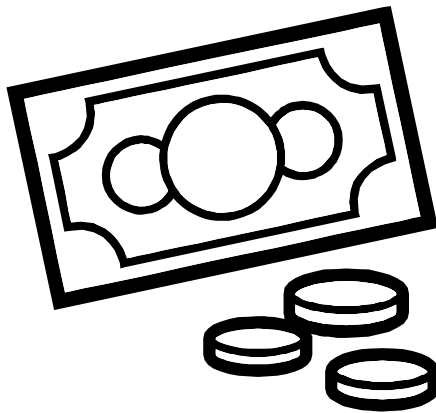

“Yes, everyone is here,” they say.

“Then why,” he asks, “is the kitchen light still on?”

On his way home one night, a man encounters a mugger. The man takes off running — climbing fences, dodging traffic, running furiously. Eventually he finds himself cornered by the mugger who takes the man’s wallet and discovers only a $5 bill inside.

“Why did you run all over the place over $5?” asks the mugger.

“Oh,” says the man, “is that all you’re after? I thought you’d take the $700 in my sock!”

A man storms up to the circulation desk in the library and complains to the librarian, “I checked out a book last week, and it was terrible!”

“Well, what didn’t you like about it?” asks the librarian.

“There were too many characters, and no plot whatsoever!”

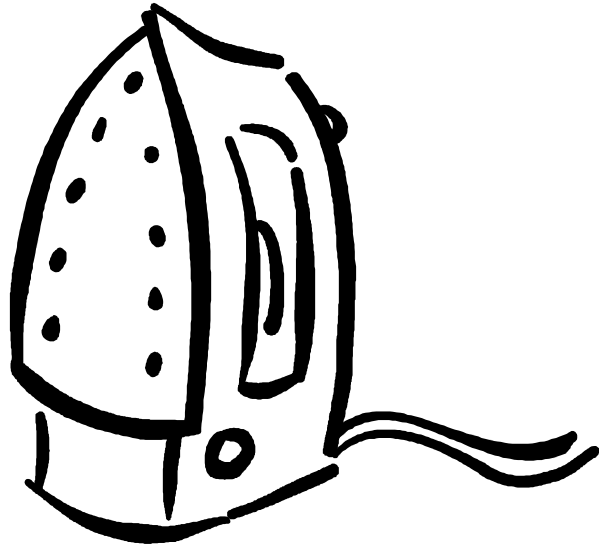

“Oh,” says the librarian, “you must be the fellow who took our phonebook.”

A college student walks to the counter and asks, “Can I have a burger and fries?”

The lady behind the counter says, “This is a library.”

“Oh, sorry,” he says. Then he whispers, “Can I have a burger and fries?”

Bill shows up at work one day with bandages all over both ears. His buddy says, “Wow, what happened to you?”

“I was ironing my shirt when the phone rang. I accidentally picked up the iron instead of the phone and burned my ear.”

“Goodness, that’s terrible!” says his buddy. “What happened to the other ear?”

“They called back!”